

Hello! My name is Samantha Sager, and I am a special education paraprofessional working with grades 1st-6th.

I believe strong relationships, patience, empathy, and encouragement can make a huge impact on a student's learning experience. I love getting to know the students I work with and helping create an environment where they feel supported, valued, and confident. One of the most rewarding parts of my job is helping students become confident, independent, lifelong learners.

When I am not at work, I enjoy gardening, hiking along the river, hunting for rocks, spending time with family, and caring for my many animals. I am also a mother of four girls, and I am familiar with neurodivergent minds and needs. One of my passions is understanding how neurodivergent minds work and finding ways to better support each student as an individual.

I am excited for another amazing year of learning!
